Aims and Scope of the Class:

This course is an outgrowth of one of my primary areas of research, the nature of popular culture and everyday life under communism in Eastern Europe. Citizens' experiences of communism in Eastern Europe and the USSR will be an important focus of the course, as will life under the Nazi regime from 1933 to 1945. But the inquiry will also extend into problems of authoritarian rule more generally, exploring the ways in which ordinary people have coped with, endured, obeyed, resisted, supported, compromised with, and sometimes ignored the dictatorial regimes that sought to control their minds and lives, and the minds and the lives of others. With these questions at the forefront, we will consider the communist and fascist experiences in an explicitly comparative context, drawing on the record of other authoritarian governments (cases addressed in the assignments and in lectures may include, for example, Franco's Spain and Salazar's Portugal, Iran after the Islamic Revolution, Pinochet's Chile, the Philippines under Marcos, communist China, Cuba, and Vietnam).

Course Requirements:

Midterm exam: 35%
Final exam: 65%

NOTE: To pass this class you must reasonably satisfy all the course requirements with a reasonable, good-faith effort. Failure to satisfy any one of the course requirements will result in a grade of F for the course.

Exams:

The exams will include a substantial, wide-ranging essay or essays that will ask you to analyze the assigned course material in light of the major themes of the course, the varying methodological perspectives from which we will approach those issues, and the critical interpretative problems that we will study. Other elements such as short-answer questions or IDs may be included, at my discretion. I will discuss the exams in more detail in class. Unless otherwise stated, no aids of any kind will be permitted during the administration of these exams.

Make up exams: Make-up exams will be given only in the case of a valid, documented excuse beyond the student's control (e.g., medical problems). Any make-up exam may be given in a different form and include different content. For example, the make-up test may be in the form of an oral exam!

We cannot make arrangements for alternate exam times due to multiple exams scheduled closely together, plans to leave campus early, etc. Check your exam schedule now -- they're available to you through TritonLink -- and make sure you've chosen a course schedule that you can live with throughout the course and at finals time!!

Final Exam: FRIDAY, DECEMBER 11 from 7:00-10:00 pm (location: check TritonLink!!)

Academic Integrity and Plagiarism: It is your responsibility to know and observe all university rules concerning academic integrity and plagiarism. Any student found to have committed a substantial violation of the university rules concerning academic integrity will fail the entire course. I view it as one of my chief responsibilities to help each of you produce first-rate academic work that reflects your own original thinking about the course themes and material. If you have any questions whatsoever about what constitutes plagiarism, how to properly credit the work and ideas of others, how to evaluate sources for quality and reliability, and so forth, please feel free to come see me.
Required readings: Note: You should have read and thought about the course readings by the dates indicated. Books are available for purchase at the UCSD Bookstore and on reserve at Geisel Library. Required texts for the course include the following:
