Iranian Revolution in Historical Perspective

In this course we shall examine the Iranian revolution of 1979 in its historical context, and will explore major aspects of the political and social history of modern Iran. Topics will include reformist ideas in 19th century Qajar society, the constitutional revolution of the early 20th century, nationalism, formation and development of the Pahlavi state, anatomy of the 1979 revolution, and a survey of the Islamic Republic. Further attention will be given to certain political, social, and intellectual themes in 20th century Iran and their impact on the revolution, as well as discussions on the reception of (and response to) western ideas in diverse areas such as political ideology and legal theory. Additional focus will be on major currents after the revolution, such as debates on democracy and electoral politics, factionalism, reform movement, and conservative consolidation.

Evaluation and Grading: There will be two tests: one midterm (35 points) and a cumulative final (65 points). Tests will consist of short essays (detailed identifications) and long analytical essays. Both exams are mandatory and in-class. They cannot be administered before the scheduled dates under any circumstances. Please bring blue book and pen/pencil. Attendance is assumed and required; grades will be reduced for lack of class attendance or if persistently late for class. Midterm and final tests will be graded up to their maximum percentage points (100 points = 100%). Students are responsible for following University rules governing academic honesty, as explained on this web site: http://students.ucsd.edu/academics/academic-integrity/index.html

Required Reading: Notes taken during lectures are important. Relevant chapters of the following books will serve as the essential background reading for each class. Students are expected to read the material in advance and bring questions to class for discussion. Required and Optional titles are available at the UCSD Bookstore.
