Class meets Mondays Wednesdays and Fridays from 11 to 11:50 in WLH 2111

Office hours: Mondays 9---10:30

Please do not send me e-mail messages. Instead, catch me before or after class and speak to me in person. In an emergency you should contact the Judaic Studies Office.

I will read the mail folder on our web site quite regularly and you can send me a message there.

Course description. Topics include the political emancipation of the Jews of Europe; the emergence of Reform, Conservative, and modern Orthodox Judaism, Hassidism, modern antisemitism, Jewish socialism, Zionism, the Holocaust, the American Jewish story, and the founding of the State of Israel.

Requirements. Students should come to class regularly. Nothing substitutes for the collective learning experience. Power point lectures will not be available on our web site.

If you bring your laptop to class to take notes, please be aware that we will be checking the class at random times to see if students are playing games, chatting on email, or shopping. In such cases we will kindly request that you return to note-taking. As your professor I find these common practices to be immensely insulting, and if they are pervasive I shall ask students not to open their laptops during lecture.

Your Web-CT assignment is to post four mini-essays on the course web site. You will not be given lists of topics or questions, but the essence of the assignment is to write about a reading, a film, a presentation by another student, a class discussion of your choice, or to respond to another student’s comment. Please read the WebCT discussions before you come to class as we shall discuss them regularly. The address is http://webct.ucsd.edu. Contact the Academic Computing Office at 4-4061 or 4-2113 if you have any problems using the site.
The major writing assignment is to write an essay on a Historical Personality which is 8 pages long. Choose your Personality by the second week of class and write your name in the notebook listing the schedule in class. Only one Personality per student, please. If the Personality is listed twice on the syllabus, focus on how that person changed Jewish history in the era under discussion that day.

Double-space your essay and use footnotes or endnotes for referencing direct quotes or interpretations. The essay will be due on May 30th. You should use one historical monograph or four historical articles. You may access sources online but you are not allowed to use Internet sources for your written work. Late work will not be accepted without prior arrangements.

Please come to class the day your Personality will be discussed and be prepared to talk for no more than three minutes about this individual. You will not be graded for this little performance. You may prepare a power point presentation if you wish; please send it to me by email or bring it in on a memory stick. Get to class early that day so we can make sure the technology is working. In the content of your short presentation, do not simply narrate their life story, but rather concentrate on how they changed the course of Jewish history. You may use the personalities noted in the syllabus or choose your own figure who lived during the relevant epoch.

There will be a take-home first examination due on May 14th. The list of possible questions for this examination will be distributed on May 9th and posted on our web site on that day. Late work will not be accepted unless the instructor is notified and gives permission for an extension 24 hours before the due date.

There will be an in-class second examination on the last day of class. This examination will consist of one essay which you will choose from a list of questions. The questions will not be distributed in advance. We will not have any examinations during finals week.

The four postings are worth 10 points; the first exam is worth 25 points; the second exam is worth 35 points, and the essay is worth 30 points.
